

European Market Demand For Fresh Garlic Has Surged In The Last Two Years

Garlic is a garlic clove obtained after a series of processes such as shearing, peeling, cleaning, and disinfecting. The garlic is crystal clear and has good color and taste. It has been very popular in domestic and foreign markets for many years, and it is a good channel for value-added garlic processing.

"As a professional fresh garlic processor and china garlic supplier, our products are supplied for export. China Garlic Price is reasonable and of high quality. In recent years, with the adjustment of the demand structure of overseas markets, our export market distribution has also undergone some changes. A few years ago, the fresh garlic is mainly exported to the United States and Canada. After that, the demand for fresh garlic in the European market is increasing, and the main growth area of our exports has also turned to Europe." Said Kevin Cheng of Shandong Xinnong Food Co., Ltd.

"Our fresh garlic is mainly exported to the Netherlands, Germany, the United Kingdom and other European countries. Although the price of fresh garlic is higher compared to fresh garlic due to the overlapping processing costs, but thanks to the use of this product "Portability and higher added value, fresh garlic products have higher added value, and market competition is not so fierce."